Metropolitan Style: Piaggio and Altuglas® go for the “citybike”

Following fashion trends, Piaggio Group, the largest European manufacturer of two-wheel motor vehicles, revamped the phenomenon of metropolitan mobility by launching a new Scarabeo® range, a real jewel in town. This new scooter model is equipped with a windscreen made of Altuglas® impact resistance acrylic sheet. Resistant, transparent and long-life, it is perfectly adapted for urban use.

This revamped Scarabeo®, created in 1993, is a real symbol of modernity and mobility. The Altuglas® windscreen is resistant to UV and atmospheric agents. It is the ideal and long-lasting protection against the wind.

The new Scarabeo® range combined with the choice of Altuglas® for the windscreen shows its capacity to adapt to the changing needs of the market.

Find out more about PMMA sheet and blocks:

Known as "acrylic glass", this polymer (polymethylmethacrylate) has exceptional optical properties, superior to that of glass. These properties have led it to become the material of choice across numerous industries, from the automotive industry to construction.

About Altuglas International, a subsidiary of ARKEMA:
